Chiel Kuijl

Chiel Kuijl is a Dutch artist whose work explores the relationship between space, movement, and human interaction through large-scale architectural installations. Using rope, tension, gravity, and air as primary elements, he creates immersive environments that transform public spaces into places of exploration, play, and discovery. Often spanning landscapes, urban settings, and bodies of water, Kuijl's installations invite visitors to engage physically with their surroundings while experiencing space from new perspectives. Through a practice that combines sculpture, architecture, and participatory art, he develops works that encourage curiosity, freedom, and a renewed connection between people and place.
