Hadge

HADGE is a Belgian multidisciplinary practice founded in 2020 by architect Dieter Vlieghe, working across architecture, interiors, furniture, and collectible design. Based in Belgium, the studio explores the relationship between spatial atmosphere and sculptural form, creating pieces distinguished by restrained geometries, tactile materials, and a quiet sense of permanence. Rooted in architectural thinking, HADGE's work seeks a balance between emotional resonance and functional clarity, where each object contributes to a cohesive and timeless environment. Guided by a deep appreciation for craftsmanship and material honesty, HADGE works primarily with natural materials such as stone, wood, and metal, embracing finishes that develop character over time. Through collectible furniture and architectural projects alike, the studio creates refined yet expressive works that celebrate texture, proportion, and the enduring beauty of handcrafted design.
