Maria Osminina

Maria Osminina is a Denmark based designer whose practice unfolds between furniture, lighting, and sculptural object. Her work is distinguished by softly articulated structures and fluid curves, bringing traditional craftsmanship into a refined dialogue with contemporary form. Through natural materials such as marble, brass, and wood, Osminina creates tactile compositions that invite both interaction and contemplation, balancing delicacy with a sense of permanence. At the heart of her practice is an exploration of emotion, time, and material presence. Each work is conceived as a vessel for feeling, where refined lines meet the weight and permanence of monolithic forms. Rooted in function yet possessing an autonomous sculptural character, her objects transcend conventional definitions of utility to become expressions of atmosphere and identity. This delicate balance between furniture and sculpture defines Osminina's distinctive language, characterised by material honesty, formal restraint, and quiet sensuality. Her work evokes a sense of continuity, creating enduring objects whose presence extends beyond their immediate purpose and invites a deeper, contemplative relationship with space.
