Filippo Andrighetto

Filippo Andrighetto is an Italian architect and designer from the Veneto region, currently working between Denmark and Italy. After studying architecture at Iuav University of Venice and the University of Buenos Aires, he developed a multidisciplinary practice spanning architecture, interiors and design. His move to Copenhagen in 2022 and encounter with the Scandinavian furniture scene marked an important development in his exploration of furniture and objects. His work brings together Italian design sensibility and Scandinavian influences, with a focus on form, material and craftsmanship. Through furniture and collectible pieces, Andrighetto explores a refined and contemporary language in which architectural thinking is translated to a more intimate scale, creating objects conceived to exist in close dialogue with the spaces they inhabit. His approach values enduring materials and careful detailing, with each piece reflecting a balance between functionality, experimentation and craftsmanship.
