Pol Quadens

Pol Quadens is a Belgian designer and artist whose work explores the relationship between engineering, material innovation, and sculptural form. Over a career spanning more than four decades, he has developed a distinctive design language that combines technical ingenuity with refined craftsmanship, creating collectible furniture and sculptures that challenge conventional perceptions of balance, weight, and structure. His continual experimentation with materials including carbon fibre, Corian, stainless steel, bronze, and aluminium has become a defining aspect of his practice. Rooted in a fascination with construction and fabrication, Quadens approaches each piece as both a functional object and a sculptural investigation. Characterised by fluid lines, visual lightness, and exceptional technical precision, his works reveal a constant dialogue between innovation and craftsmanship. From collectible furniture to monumental public sculptures, his practice continues to push the boundaries of contemporary design, transforming complex engineering into elegant and timeless forms.
