DESIGNER

Zieta

Zieta, founded by Polish designer Oskar Zięta, operates at the intersection of art, design, and engineering, where material experimentation becomes a distinctive creative philosophy. Working primarily with blown metal, the studio combines technology, innovation, and an intuitive understanding of natural forces to explore new formal possibilities. Central to its practice is FiDU (Freie Innen Druck Umformung), an innovative process that transforms flat steel sheets into lightweight, structurally resilient forms. Each piece develops unique curves and subtle variations, allowing imperfection and material autonomy to become part of its identity.

Rejecting fleeting trends, Zieta Studio creates furniture, mirrors, and installations that challenge conventional ideas of precision and perfection. Its process begins with the material, allowing form to emerge through experimentation and a dialogue between designer intent and material behavior. Produced in Wrocław, Poland, the studio’s works are internationally collected for their distinctive fusion of engineering intelligence, sculptural presence, and industrial elegance, transforming metal into objects that actively redefine the spaces they inhabit.
