DESIGNER

Dongwook Choi

Dongwook Choi is a South Korean designer based in Gyeonggi-do whose practice explores the intersection of computational design, digital fabrication, and sculptural furniture. A graduate of Konkuk University with a background in metal craft, Choi transforms algorithmic forms, organic geometries, and biomorphic structures into collectible furniture and objects that balance playful experimentation with functional design. His work challenges conventional perceptions of form, creating pieces that evoke curiosity while remaining grounded in material craftsmanship. Guided by an experimental approach, Choi’s creative process begins in the digital realm before being realized through meticulous fabrication. Blurring the boundaries between technology and handcraft, his work celebrates the dialogue between digital innovation and physical making, resulting in expressive objects that reinterpret everyday function through dynamic forms, tactile surfaces, and contemporary materiality.
