DESIGNER

Paul Coenen

Born in 1992, Paul Coenen is a designer whose practice merges experimentation with a hands-on exploration of materials and techniques. Fascinated by both modern and traditional methods of fabrication, Coenen allows the inherent qualities of his materials and the logic of his processes to shape the final form of each object. This philosophy results in designs that are direct, unpretentious, and intimately connected to their making, where every detail emerges from the dialogue between material and technique. A graduate of the Design Academy Eindhoven in 2019, Coenen continues to investigate the boundaries between craftsmanship, industrial production, and material innovation, producing objects that are both thoughtful and tactile. His work reflects a deep respect for process, offering clarity and honesty in form while celebrating the subtle beauty of material expression.
