Mike Ruiz-Serra

Mike Ruiz-Serra is a Barcelona-born designer whose practice explores the expressive potential of furniture and objects at the intersection of sculpture, architecture, and design. His work is characterized by a distinctive postmodern sensibility tempered by the warmth and ease of Mediterranean culture. Through a confident interplay of form, color, and material, Ruiz-Serra creates pieces that are both visually striking and emotionally resonant. Often working with metal and lacquered wood, he combines rigorous geometric structures with fluid, softened contours, allowing tension and balance to define each object. Bold, carefully considered color palettes play a central role weight yet resist rigidity. Deeply informed by design history, Ruiz-Serra's practice does not seek nostalgia, but rather reinterprets historical references through a contemporary lens. His furniture occupies a space between art and function, asserting itself as a statement within an interior while remaining attentive to use and human interaction. This duality reflects his belief that furniture should be both artful and engaging, capable of shaping atmosphere and experience. Through his sculptural approach, Ruiz-Serra invites dialogue between object and space, creating works that feel timeless yet current, and that resonate through their clarity of form, material
