Anthony Dickens

British designer Anthony Dickens, born in Dorset in 1975, founded his London studio in 1998 and is known for his inventive ability to recast everyday objects with wit and clarity. From the acclaimed Origami tables to the Anglepoise Fifty and the award-winning Teki lamp, Dickens' works imbue simple narratives with innovative function and form. In 2015, he established Studio Make Believe, working with global brands on strategic design challenges. Dickens' philosophy balances narrative with engineering, reshaping our encounters with objects and lighting through playful yet purposeful interventions.
