Neri & Hu

Neri&Hu, founded in 2006 by Lyndon Neri and Rossana Hu, is an interdisciplinary architectural practice based in Shanghai, working across architecture, interiors, design, and critical research. Its international portfolio spans master planning, installations, furniture, product design, branding, and graphic works, reflecting a holistic approach to the built environment. With projects across multiple continents and a multicultural team representing more than thirty languages, Neri&Hu embraces cross-cultural dialogue as a fundamental part of its practice. Shanghai remains central to its identity, providing a rich cultural, urban, and historical context for continuous exploration. Grounded in rigorous research, the studio focuses on experience, materiality, detail, form, and light, approaching each project as an opportunity for critical inquiry rather than stylistic repetition. By integrating diverse disciplines and perspectives, Neri&Hu creates architecture and design that engage deeply with place, history, and contemporary life, continually challenging conventional boundaries while maintaining intellectual clarity and cultural sensitivity.
