DESIGNER

Pierre-Axel Coulibeuf

Pierre-Axel Coulibeuf grew up in France, the son of a businessman and an artist trained at the École des Beaux-Arts. Early on, he displayed a resourceful creativity, excelling in drawing and translating ideas into tangible forms. This early curiosity led him to study landscape design before pursuing interior architecture, laying the foundation for a practice that bridges spatial awareness with sculptural sensibility. Coulibeuf began his professional journey designing bars and restaurants in the hospitality sector, before relocating to London to work with Charles Burnand Gallery under the direction of Simon. There, he honed his understanding of decoration, materials, and lighting designer. His works have been presented at prestigious fairs such as Nomad in Monaco and The Salon in New York, though most creations remain unique, unseen by the public, emphasizing their singularity. Now based in California, Coulibeuf draws inspiration from his studios in Los Angeles and Santa Barbara, where he continues to develop objects that merge functional elegance with artistic presence. His pieces are exhibited internationally, including in New York, Geneva, and Singapore, reflecting a practice rooted in refined materiality, thoughtful design, and a commitment to one-of-a-kind expression.
