DESIGNER

Pani Jurek

Founded in 2010 by Magda Jurek, Pani Jurek occupies a distinctive space between fine art, craft, and design, creating objects that exist equally as functional forms and sculptural expressions. Trained as a painter, Jurek approaches design through signs, compositions, and installations, weaving personal memories, observations, and quiet intuitions into tactile, poetic forms. Each work emerges from an intimate dialogue between material, experience, and everyday life, transforming disparate references into objects of singular character. Materiality and craftsmanship remain central to the practice. Working predominantly in ceramics, Jurek embraces the possibilities and limitations of her materials, with every piece handmade and closely overseen in her studio. Designed in response to their surroundings and users, her objects invite interaction, perception, and reinterpretation. Beyond conventional commissions, Pani Jurek engages in social and experimental initiatives, where design becomes a vehicle for collective exploration. Through ergonomics, interactivity, and material integrity, each creation transcends utility, becoming a quietly expressive presence within everyday life.
