OWL is a Barcelona-based design studio led by Alfredo Lopez, dedicated to crafting unique furniture and objects, primarily in wood, that balance functionality with enduring aesthetic presence. The studio approaches its collections as evolving series—living frameworks that adapt to diverse spaces, projects, and users. Notable series include Formica (2018), Capsules (2019), La Pepino (2020, expanded 2024), and Alabaster (2022), each reflecting OWL's commitment to thoughtful design and adaptability. In 2024, during Milan Design Week, OWL unveiled Frames, a system of screens created in collaboration with Charlotte Taylor and A.P.C., exemplifying the studio's ethos of meticulously handmade in OWL's workshop, using locally sourced, high-quality materials chosen for their durability, sustainability, and subtle variation in tone, texture, and color. Custom commissions are central to the studio's practice, allowing furniture and interiors to be tailored for homes, offices, and larger-scale projects. Each creation is carefully packaged and shipped to ensure its integrity, embodying OWL's dedication to precision and care. Through its evolving series and bespoke work, OWL bridges tradition and contemporary design, producing objects that are timeless, personal, and poetic.
