DESIGNER

Isabel Moncada

Isabel Moncada is a Mexican designer whose lighting practice spans more than three decades of experimentation, craftsmanship, and material exploration. Based near Guadalajara, she creates handcrafted luminaires that combine artisanal techniques with contemporary design, developing a distinctive visual language rooted in sculptural form, refined proportions, and the expressive qualities of light. Every piece is conceived and produced within her workshop, where design, prototyping, and fabrication remain closely interconnected. Guided by a deep respect for traditional craftsmanship and innovation, Moncada's work reinterprets vernacular making techniques through a contemporary lens. Balancing technical precision with a poetic sensibility, her lighting collections celebrate the dialogue between material, light, and space, resulting in timeless pieces that embody the richness of Mexican craftsmanship and collectible design.
