DESIGNER

Isabel Moncada

Mexican designer Isabel Moncada has devoted more than three decades to lighting conceived and fabricated in her own workshop near Guadalajara. Her practice fuses artisanal mechanics with contemporary silhouettes, transforming vernacular processes into lamps that feel both engineered and personal. Recent features highlight a studio rhythm in which design, prototyping, and production remain contiguous—objects bearing the imprint of daily handwork and a lyrical sense of illumination. Moncada's work exemplifies a living craft innovation within Mexico's design landscape.
