Taras Yoom is an award-winning multidisciplinary artist based in Bangkok whose practice merges art, design, and scientific inquiry. Originally trained in medicine, his early hospital experience shaped a lasting fascination with biology, nature, and the human condition. This scientific foundation informs his expansive Yoomoota universe, an immersive body of work combining organic structures with psychological landscapes to create a parallel realm reflecting both body and mind. Working across sculpture, collectible design, furniture, and painting, Yoom approaches art as a form of investigation, inspired by the interdisciplinary spirit of Leonardo da Vinci. His works explore the relationship between humanity and nature, producing forms that appear both familiar and otherworldly. Recognized by international awards including the International Design Awards, A' Design Award, Good Design Awards, and Lexus Design Awards, his work is held in major design collections. Yoom describes his practice as biomorphic surrealism, where science, imagination, and emotion converge.
