DESIGNER

Mark Sturkenboom

Dutch artist and designer Mark Sturkenboom is celebrated for his conceptual and often provocative furniture, objects, and installations that explore themes of memory, love, and mortality. His practice moves fluidly between art and design, frequently imbuing utilitarian objects with layered symbolic meaning. Known for combining craftsmanship with theatrical presentation, Sturkenboom uses materials such as glass, bronze, wood, and precious metals as narrative devices, creating pieces that tell intimate and sometimes unsettling stories. Drawing on his background in art and product design, Sturkenboom approaches each work as a poetic statement rather than purely a functional object. Exhibited internationally, his collections challenge the viewer to reconsider the emotional potential of design — treating furniture and artefacts as vessels for nostalgia, preservation, and human connection.
