Sizar Alexis

Sizar Alexis is a Swedish–Iraqi designer whose work embodies stillness, presence, and quiet strength. Guided by geometric form, he creates sculptural objects that reveal the raw beauty of natural materials, allowing their inherent qualities to emerge with clarity and restraint. Rooted in his Chaldean heritage and shaped by the layered experience of migration, Alexis draws on the architectural and spiritual traditions of ancient Mesopotamia. His practice reflects a deep engagement with cultural memory, translating enduring archetypes into contemporary forms that resonate with both history and modernity. Often exploring structures whose functions are not immediately apparent, his work embraces ambiguity and reflection over direct interpretation. Positioned between art and design, Alexis's creations invite contemplation while remaining grounded in material authenticity. Through this dialogue of identity, heritage, and form, his pieces transcend utility, becoming vessels of cultural continuity and quiet resonance within the contemporary design landscape.
