DESIGNER

Niko Koronis

Niko Koronis is a Greek designer whose practice centers on the creation of hand-crafted, sculptural furniture defined by strong geometric clarity and harmonious proportion. Working primarily with wood and metal, he approaches design through a deep respect for material authenticity, allowing structure, texture, and construction to remain visibly integral to each piece. Koronis's work is informed by Mediterranean traditions of making, where craft, rhythm, and material honesty form the foundation of everyday objects. These influences are distilled through a contemporary minimalist lens, resulting in designs that are both grounded and refined. Clean and carefully balanced volumes give his furniture a quiet monumentality, while meticulous detailing reveals the hand of the maker. Each piece is conceived as a dialogue between past and present—where traditional craftsmanship meets modern sensibility without nostalgia or excess. The result is a body of work that feels timeless and assured, bridging artisanal heritage with contemporary aesthetics. Through restraint, precision, and material integrity, Koronis creates objects that transcend function to become enduring sculptural presences within space.
