Masaya

Masaya, founded in 2016, emerged as a distinct branch of its parent brand, evolving from large-scale bronze pieces into finely crafted brass door furniture. Rooted in traditional techniques and over thirty years of artisanal expertise, Masaya celebrates the expressive potential of lost-wax casting, a process that allows fluid, organic forms and subtle variations to define each creation. Every piece is handcrafted through a meticulous sequence of sculpting, casting, pouring, welding, polishing, and coloring. This entirely manual process ensures that no two objects are identical, giving each its own character and individuality. Combining sculptural presence with functional precision, Masaya's brass elements are designed to engage naturally with materials such as wood, marble, and glass, adapting to diverse architectural and interior settings. Through a refined balance of tradition, material sensitivity, and contemporary form, the brand creates enduring objects shaped by craftsmanship, time, and human touch.
