DESIGNER

Valentina Giovando

Valentina Giovando is an Italian designer whose practice spans furniture, objects, and installations, defined by poetic minimalism and a deeply tactile approach to material. Her work explores texture, proportion, and the delicate balance between void and mass, allowing form to emerge with clarity and restraint. Working primarily with stone, ceramic, and wood, Giovando treats materials as active presences, allowing their weight, grain, porosity, and surface to shape each creation. The result is a quiet yet powerful body of work in which subtle gestures carry lasting resonance. Collaboration with skilled artisans is central to her practice, preserving traditional knowledge within a contemporary language. Each piece reflects a dialogue between maker, material, and form, balancing personal expression with respect for natural qualities. Transcending function, her objects become contemplative presences within space, inviting a slower engagement with touch, rhythm, and the enduring beauty of considered design.
