DESIGNER

Valentina Giovando

Valentina Giovando is an Italian designer whose work encompasses furniture, objects, and installations, distinguished by a poetic minimalism and a deeply tactile relationship with material. Her practice is guided by a refined sensitivity to texture, proportion, and the delicate equilibrium between void and mass, allowing form to emerge with clarity and restraint. Working primarily with stone, ceramic, and wood, Giovando approaches materials as living presences rather than neutral resources. Their inherent qualities—weight, grain, porosity, and surface—play a central role in shaping each piece. Through this attentive process, her designs achieve a quiet with skilled artisans is integral to Giovando's methodology, ensuring that traditional knowledge and handcraft remain visible within a contemporary language. This dialogue between maker and material results in works that feel intimate yet assured, understated yet enduring. Each creation embodies a balance between personal expression and respect for the natural voice of materials, offering objects that transcend function to become contemplative presences within space. Giovando's work invites a slower engagement—one attuned to touch, rhythm, and the timeless elegance of considered design.
