Grès Éditions

Grès Éditions is a French design studio founded by Aurélie Lecuyer and Jean-Christophe, whose practice explores the relationship between ceramics, craftsmanship, and everyday living. Established in 2020, the studio creates handcrafted lighting and objects distinguished by sculptural forms, raw textures, and a quiet material presence. Produced entirely in France in collaboration with local artisans, each piece reflects a deep appreciation for traditional craftsmanship and the expressive qualities of natural clay. Guided by a commitment to slow production and thoughtful making, Grès Éditions embraces the individuality of handcrafted processes, allowing each object to retain the subtle marks of its creation. Through refined simplicity, tactile materials, and timeless design, the studio develops enduring works that celebrate material honesty, artisanal excellence, and the enduring dialogue between contemporary design and everyday rituals.
