DESIGNER

Niclas Wolf

Niclas Wolf's practice emerges from a profound attunement to the natural world. In his daily life, he searches, gathers, and records elements that resonate with him—transforming the earth's resources so that the unseen becomes tangible. His creative process is a union of body and mind, soul and thought, hands and breath, allowing material to embody both physical presence and poetic intent. Rooted in experimentation, Wolf's works are layered narratives composed from the textures, colors, and energies of his surroundings. Tectonic structures and geological phenomena serve as enduring sources of inspiration, guiding his exploration into how nature's formative forces can be translated into contemporary design. The resulting collections are speculative yet grounded—objects shaped by deep time and natural processes, yet refined through the immediacy and intimacy of the artist's hand.
