DESIGNER

Laura Pasquino

Based in Amsterdam, ceramicist and painter Laura Pasquino draws her inspiration from the slow transformations of nature—geological shifts, erosion, and other subtle processes that quietly shape landscapes and lives. Her ceramic sculptures embody a dialogue between fragility and resilience, embracing cracks, variations, and irregularities as essential elements of the narrative. Rooted in ancient ceramic traditions yet informed by a contemporary sensibility, Pasquino's practice is guided as much by material intuition as by design intent. In her hands, clay becomes a site of experimentation, where structure and spontaneity find equilibrium. Her works have been exhibited internationally, entering private collections across the United States, Asia, and Europe, and extending into public art commissions, museum collaborations, and design projects with leading global brands.
