Mythology

Mythology is a design and craft studio led by Sam Pearson and Anna Kidel, working at the intersection of utility, expression, and traditional making. Founded in 2020, the studio creates objects with a bold sculptural presence and refined simplicity, guided by a deep respect for natural materials and their inherent character. Each piece emerges through close collaboration, experimentation, and careful refinement, balancing texture with form, boldness with restraint, and expressive gesture with precise execution. Natural materials are central to Mythology's practice, selected for their sensory qualities and, whenever possible, sourced locally to strengthen the connection between object, place, and process. Handcrafted techniques remain fundamental, with intuition and attention shaping every stage of production. Rather than seeking flawless uniformity, the studio embraces subtle variations and traces of the hand, giving each creation a distinctive identity. Designed to age gracefully, Mythology's works are conceived as enduring companions—objects that bring warmth, character, and a lasting sense of connection to the spaces they inhabit.
