İpek Afacan is a Turkish ceramic artist based in Cappadocia, where she runs her studio practice focused on handmade ceramics and material exploration. Working closely with the rhythms of making, her practice emphasizes process, tactility, and the expressive qualities of clay. Each piece reflects a direct engagement with material—shaped by hand, allowing subtle irregularities and textures to emerge as part of the final form. Rooted in a quiet, intuitive approach, Afacan’s work explores the relationship between object and gesture, resulting in pieces that balance simplicity, sensitivity, and a strong sense of presence.
