SATURDAY SELECTS

Week of January 25, 2021

by Monica Khemsurov

A weekly Saturday recap to share with you our favorite links, discoveries, exhibitions, and more from the past seven days. This week: a funny lamp with cartoon hands, a new space for emerging design in Paris, and a collection of furniture by SU favorite EJR Barnes for a collector in London (above).

Exhibitions

Galerie Philia – the Singapore-, Geneva-, and NYC-based art and design gallery – will be opening a big show in the Walker Tower in Manhattan on February 15, featuring 70 works by 40 international designers. There's a huge range of work, some new and some a few years old – everything from Rick Owens to Rooms. Some of our favorite of the newer ones though are above, from top, a lamp by Elisa Uberti, a mirror by Laurène Guarnieri, and a spring-green console by Laurids Gallée. We aren't sure about visitation rules but keep an eye out for more info (or DM the gallery) here.
