

ADPRO

Nicole Fuller Debuts Collection for The Rug Company and More News This Week

Here's what you need to know

By Madeleine Luckel, Allie Weiss, and Katherine Burns Olson

February 12, 2021

From significant business changes to noteworthy product launches, there's always something new happening in the world of design. In this weekly roundup, AD PRO has everything you need to know.

Galerie Philia's soon-to-open showcase in New York. Photo: Courtesy of Galerie Philia

Openings

A Cool Collectible Design Showcase Arrives in New York

For homebound Manhattanites looking for a change of scenery, Galerie Philia is opening up a special showcase in Chelsea's Walker Tower, a striking 1929 Art Deco building, this Monday. In a duplex apartment on the 18th floor of the Ralph Walker-designed structure, the international gallery will be showing an exciting curation of more than 70 collectible designs by 40 global talents. Italian architect and designer Pietro Franceschini, who co-curated the setup, says to AD PRO: "The goal was to put together a scenario between a gallery and a real, livable apartment. We wanted the objects and artworks to have enough space to express themselves but at the same time be in constant communication with each other."