The international art and design space Galerie Philia marks its arrival on American shores with a suitably elegant showcase of practitioners who have not previously shown with the gallery – many have not been exhibited in the United States before – together with a selection of its classic stable of established designers (Rick Owens is one). Entitled 'First Times' and staged within the gallery's new Tribeca showroom, the immersive and livable installation of intercultural works also highlights Galerie Philia's interior design prowess, which it hopes to develop under the moniker Philia Interiors with future projects.
